Win Great Prizes In Our E-Mail Contest!

Our quarterly legal newsletters have become a firm tradition. We receive tremendous feedback from our clients on this great resource, and many clients have asked us to start sending them out on a more frequent basis. When I told this to my 8-year-old daughter, she reminded me that we needed to preserve our environment and use less paper. She then drew her beautiful "Save Our Trees" picture.

After a short brainstorming session, my daughter and I came up with the idea of sending some of our legal updates to our clients via e-mail. This would accomplish my goal of providing more frequent information and her mission to save trees.

We created a contest to collect your e-mail addresses. To learn how to enter and win great prizes, see the bottom of this page. I guess I needed to see the trees before looking at the forest—another valuable lesson learned from a child.

Rebate RAGE!

Rebate rip-offs have sparked consumer lawsuits and new legislation. Many who buy products promoted with “cash” rebates are enraged when the rebate is too hard to apply for, is unreasonably delayed, takes the form of a “reward” credit card, is a credit toward purchases limited to the issuing manufacturer, or never arrives at all.

A federal court in California has allowed cell phone buyers who received Visa® “reward cards” to file a class action. Purchasers allege violations of federal laws against unfair competition, false advertising, and unjust enrichment.

There are other consumer-rebate cases as well:

- When thousands complained to InPhonic, Inc., in 2006, Washington, D.C.’s attorney general sued for the company’s failure to honor rebates. The city and InPhonic reached a multimillion-dollar settlement.

- In 2007, California computer retailer Soyo, Inc., reached a settlement with the Federal Trade Commission over complaints about excessive delays in rebate processing.

Courts and courting

Jury duty can be very rewarding.

Queens County, New York, Supreme Court Justice Daniel Lewis, presiding over a criminal trial, said, “Some juries are serious, some are somber, but this jury seemed like it was full of beaming, happy people.”

No wonder. After noticing an attraction between two of their 30-something copanelists, fellow jurors convinced the two to go out on a date. They went to lunch together during a trial break.

A year later, the couple was engaged and planned to be married...by Justice Lewis.

Auto airbag FRAUD

Drivers who are in accidents, purchase used cars, or visit “weekend” mechanics may be at risk of a very dangerous scam: airbag fraud.

Airbags are valuable, so some dishonest mechanics have removed and sold original airbags. Fraudulent mechanics replace bags with cheap knockoffs, rebuilt equipment, or even stuff cavities with rags—then replace covers. This exposes drivers and passengers to extreme accident-injury risk.

Precautions

Get an inspection. Have a trusted mechanic verify that airbags are present and working properly.

Check dash lights. On recent models, dash lights blink at start-up, indicating that the airbag system is working.

Review invoices. After accident repairs, have mechanics certify that airbags have been replaced and are working.

Verify vehicle history. Obtain a commercial service report.

Never tamper. Opening airbag wells is dangerous.

Contact an attorney if you feel you are a victim of airbag fraud.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

New car purchases

Consumers have several important protections for new car purchases.

The Federal Trade Commission Web site offers guidance for purchasing a new car, trade-ins, financing, and service contracts. State governments provide buyers assistance with problems such as false advertising, predatory auto lending, and lemon laws.

Car buyers can also contact resources such as Consumer Reports magazine, rating guides, and associations such as the Direct Marketing Association and the Better Business Bureau for information about manufacturers, vehicles, and dealers.

A not-so-new car

After a buyer purchased a vehicle from a dealership that represented it as new, she discovered the car had been previously owned. When she began to experience trouble with it, she attempted to take the car back. The dealership threatened her, relocated the disabled car to a tow-away zone, and laughed in her face. Her attorney sued for fraud and violations of a state consumer protection act. A jury awarded the victim an award a dozen times the vehicle cost, plus punitive damages.

CLIENT-ATTORNEY PRIVILEGE

Q: Who holds the “privilege?”

A: The client. An attorney can release information only with authorization from the client.

Q: So, clients can trust their attorneys with confidential information?

A: Yes. An attorney may not reveal anything disclosed without client consent.

Q: Why?

A: Regulations governing evidence and rules of professional conduct require that attorneys maintain all specifics of a client-attorney relationship as strictly confidential.

Q: Should clients tell their attorneys everything?

A: Yes. It’s important to fully disclose all the relevant details of a case to a lawyer—positive and negative—so that counsel can represent the client confidently and appropriately.

Q: Why is that?

A: A client’s failure to be fully candid may adversely affect a case if the attorney is surprised or blindsided by critical information coming from anyone but the client at any time in the case. If there are problems with conflicts of interest or ethics issues, the attorney will advise a client immediately.
